

Viki Jingle

Chief Executive Officer, Community Healthcare of Texas

Viki Jingle has served as the Chief Executive Officer at Community Healthcare of Texas since 2017. She first joined the organization when it was founded in 1996 and was instrumental in its growth to become the state's largest not-for-profit hospice and palliative care provider.

Before being named CEO of Community Healthcare of Texas, Viki worked in the for-profit hospice sector for more than six years. This experience gave her a unique perspective and understanding of the philosophical differences between for-profit and not-for-profit hospice providers. She firmly believes that patients and families are negatively impacted when hospice and palliative care providers are more focused on bottom-line profits than individualized care. Viki is an advocate for patient-centered care and is proud to work in the not-for-profit hospice sector, where she can ensure patients, families, and communities have access to exceptional care regardless of financial limitations.

Viki is a member of the non-profit Hospice Alliance where she collaborates with healthcare providers at the local, state, and national levels to identify and eliminate barriers to care for those facing a serious or life-limiting illness.

During her tenure as CEO, Viki has successfully navigated the challenges of the ever-changing healthcare environment while expanding Community Healthcare of Texas services to include palliative care.

Viki attended The University of Texas at Arlington, receiving a degree in Accounting, and the University of Dallas, where she received a master's degree in Business Administration.
